MURPHY MOON DESIGN

For 21 years Murphy Moon has designed custom homes that blend style, function and personal expression. After training at top design firms in Chicago and Los Angeles, she moved to Austin in 2014. Her full-service studio advises on everything from space planning to furniture and art; she'll also review architects' drawings and construction budgets. murphymoondesign.com

MATTHEW TSANG DESIGN

Matthew Tsang likes to say "True

design embodies purpose and beauty, which lends itself to incredible spaces." A business graduate from the University of Texas, Tsang started his design firm (then called M. Walter Design) in 2014. His firm offers residential, commercial, art and floral services. (214) 282-8168, matthewtsang.com

If you want a taste of Suzie Page Whitworth's design skills, just visit 2408 Lake Austin Blvd. That 1920s bungalow was empty for decades until she renovated it and turned it into an interior design studio and home good shop in 2013. Whitworth has more than 20 years of interior design experience, and her clients include University of Texas football coach Tom Herman and his wife, Michelle. 2408 Lake Austin Blvd., (512) 477-2307, pagehomedesign.com

R DESIGNS BY JANE REECE

Jane Reece moved her design business from Orlando to Austin in 2007 and quickly carved a niche among high-end clients. From high-rises at The Residences at W Austin and Four Seasons to homes in Tarrytown and Oak Hill, her projects utilize contemporary colors and classic style. She'll also stage homes for sale. RACHEL HORN INTERIORS

Rachel Horn discovered the joy of finding the right object for each space amid the classic buildings of San Miguel de Allende, her childhood home. Her turnkey residential and hospitality work is widely admired for historical beauty and Spanish colonial style. Collaborating with architects, her firm sources and fabricates all of the decor and sells handcrafted items in her Austin boutique. 2100 Newtown St., (512) 354-1300, rachelhorn.com

ROBERT BENTLEY DESIGN

There is no better example of Robert Bentley's design skills than his own 711-square-foot condo, which is both highly efficient and bursting with personality. He believes in "respecting the architecture and complementing it with timeless pieces" and applies that philosophy to all of his projects. From a luxury loft on the edge of downtown to a house along Lake Austin, his projects inspire. 710 Colorado St., Ste. 3C, (512) 789-5937, robertbentleydesign.com

ROBIN COLTON STUDIO

Having worked for 10 years designing in the fashion industry before switching her focus to interiors, Robin Colton brings a fashion sensibility to her residential and commercial projects. Those range from a downtown condo to a suburban home in Steiner Ranch. In 2018, she launched a collection of 13 pillows that marry her apparel background with her interior design experience. SARAH WITTENBRAKER DESIGN

Sarah Wittenbraker's design projects are very much like her flaming red hair: bold and colorful. The designer gets her style from having grown up in Dallas and spending years in New York City. In 2018, the firm moved into a bungalow on Powell Street and reopened, for a limited time, the Design Delivered service, which offers clients the Wittenbraker look without having to financially commit to the full-service design option. 509 Powell St., (512) 668-1313, sarahwittenbraker.com

SHABBY SLIPS

Since designer Sara Scaglione opened Shabby Slips in 1994 at age 24, the business has evolved from a slipcover and custom furnishings boutique into a full-service interior design showroom where clients can experience classic interiors. She travels the world to find the best in decor and antiques, and she continues to use materials that are elegant, refined, modern and natural. 1126 1/2 W. Sixth St., (512) 478-5666, shabbyslipsaustin.com

SLIC DESIGN

Sara Cukerbaum worked at a hedge fund for about a year and a half before she had a realization: She was more excited to read Architectural Digest than she was The Wall Street Jour- and Brooke Wilbratte consciously bring something unique to the table for each client. They specialize in juxtaposing select objects to make “curated vignettes.” Still, “the design is always personalized,” Wilbratte says. “We work with all aesthetics and styles, and never repeat the same look.” 5000 Bee Caves Road, Ste. 102, decorhousedesign.com

ERIN WILLIAMSON DESIGN

How many interior designers have had their own home featured in Architectural Digest and Elle Decor? Erin Williamson is one. In addition, she shares her design talent on her blog, Design Crisis, which is a great resource for those looking for some interior inspiration. erinwilliamsondesign.com

ETCH DESIGN GROUP

Stephanie Lindsey and Jessica Nelson, the two principals behind Etch Design Group, follow a philosophy: “The best design always leaves a lasting impression.” Thus, their firm is named Etch, and in just a few short years it has compiled an impressive portfolio, which includes a 5,000-square-foot custom home in Barton Creek. (512) 568-3224, etchdesigngroup.com

EVENSEN DESIGN

Clean lines, bright spaces and luxurious details abound in the designs of this boutique firm, which specializes in renovations and new construction throughout Texas. Principal Erica Evensen owns a degree from the University of Texas School of Architecture, and her firm’s projects includes everything from a historical renovation of a Tudor cottage in Lakewood to a modern penthouse in downtown Dallas. FUTURE DESIGN NOW

If you watched Season 7 of HGTV’s Design Star, then you’re already familiar with the talent of Future Design Now founder Kris Swift. Though he finished seventh in that show, this Canadian transplant showed his ability to deliver timeless designs. In addition to his design practice, Swift is the creative director at Jacoby’s Restaurant & Mercantile. Not bad for a Canadian, eh? 3304 E. Fifth St., Ste. A, (512) 565-4175, futuredesignnow.com

GREER INTERIOR DESIGN

Trained in New York and Chicago, Jennifer Greer Hartmann has more than 15 years of experience in interior design; from downtown condos to casual lakefront, her boutique studio’s work is lauded for timeless style. With a staff well versed in architecture and art, she believes adherence to schedule and budget are just as important as aesthetics for measuring a project’s success. 3403 Glenview Ave., (512) 323-9298, greerinteriordesign.com

HEATHER SCOTT HOME & DESIGN

Heather Blue Harkovich proves you can do it all. She’s a highly decorated designer whose projects have appeared on TLC and HGTV. (She was even selected to handle the Southern Living Showcase Home in 2013.) And she and her husband, Scott, run a retail shop that offers furnishings, lamps, art and accessories in an approachable, boutique setting. 1105 W. 42nd St., (512) 342-6899, heatherscotthome.com

HEY NOW INTERIORS

A former Austin news anchor, Amy Hadley lived in Prague for two years, and that’s when she learned what she calls “the power of home.” She defines that as “setting up your space with purpose so it serves you and even helps you get what you want out of life.” So in 2017

Hadley launched her interior design firm, which offers complete design, redesign and e-design services, with free 20-minute consultations. heynowinteriors.com

JAIMIE ANAND INTERIORS

Founded in 2015 by Jaimie Anand, this boutique design firm offers interior design services for residential, commercial and hospitality spaces. Although the firm specializes in contemporary and modern chic designs, Anand works with clients to achieve whatever aesthetic they desire. In 2017 she was selected to be the designer for the Zilkr on the Park Condominiums. (512) 573-2484, jaimieanand.com

JEI DESIGN

JEI is an acronym for Julie Evans Interiors, a firm that has specialized in upscale residential design and residential project planning in Austin for more than 30 years. Evans has received 26 Design Excellence awards from the Austin chapter of the ASID, and many of her projects have been included in design publications or on HGTV. 3316 Bee Caves Road, Ste. B, (512) 330-9179, julieevans.net

JENNIFER GARNER INTERIORS

Though the name of this firm has changed from Refined Interiors, the business is still run by University of Texas graduate Jennifer Garner, who believes that “design is something you feel.” A full-service studio since 2000, the firm works with clients one-on-one or in a team to create distinctive, finely crafted, functional spaces for home office, kitchen and bath. 4202 Spicewood Springs Road, Ste. 201, (512) 657-0520, jennifergarnerinteriors.com

J. FISHER INTERIORS

With 13 years of experience, principal Jennifer Fisher specializes in finding distinctive pieces for clients. Trained by two of the country’s top interior designers, Fisher is known for combining modern and vintage styles to a uniquely eclectic effect. Her firm’s comprehensive services include space planning and personal shopping, along with consulting on residential and commercial work in all construction phases. (512) 954-0904, jfisherinteriors.com

JOEL MOZERSKY DESIGN

With clients from Mattie’s and La Condesa to Birds Barbershop, this interior design firm is doing something right. Texas native Joel Mozersky, an art history major, started a furniture-design business in 1994; his first restaurant design job, for Uchi, instantly transformed his career. Today you’ll find his stamp on many Austin hot spots and fine residences. (512) 913-3732, joelmozersky.com

JOYCE MARIE INTERIORS

Joyce Marie Hurdlow has designed interiors since childhood, redecorating her bedroom whenever her family moved. Today she attentively maps an interior gameplan for each client, from image boards to furnishings, which she’ll procure anywhere from showrooms to craft fairs and consignment shops. A Victorian makeover, a Sun City refresh and a high-rise condo are recent projects. (616) 481-6318, joycemarieinteriors.com

KASEY MCCARTY

Kasey McCarty built her reputation on “cultivated yet uncomplicated” spaces that provide “a solid foundation for how people work.” Beyond an array of residential work, her many local high-profile projects include the Heywood Hotel, Violet Crown Cinema, Olive & June, Eliza Page, SALON by milk + honey, and
