

GREEN

When it comes to decorating, green means go!

Add green to a room and the space immediately becomes fresher, more harmonious, more alive.

No other color conjures the nurturing look and feel of nature quite like it. It's no wonder that we love to surround ourselves with this comforting color. Truth is, every space looks good in green. Can't you just imagine cooking among sophisticated sage cabinets, retreating to a tranquil mint bedroom, studying in a rich emerald library or entertaining outdoors among vibrant chartreuse accents?

No other color is quite as versatile, either. It updates traditional, takes the edge off modern, and is equally powerful in masculine and feminine decors. It's also fitting for both grown-up and kids' spaces. What's more, green plays well with other colors and is forever fashionable. Green may be today's decorating darling, but as the following spaces prove, it never goes out of style.

◀ Dazzling green tiles jump start this chic, predominantly white décor. Alder & Tweed designer Morgan Veenendaal chose the playful-yet-sophisticated tile color to deliver “a fresh spirit and energy” to this contemporary space. She also used the Walker Zanger tile's subtle wave shape to create an updated take on classic subway tile. alderandtweed.com

◀ A young boy's love of Star Wars sparked the use of forest green and geometrically patterned wallpaper in his bedroom. "It's a space that can grow and transition over the years," says interior designer Andrea West. "The tone of green is so important in this balance as it can feel young and fresh, yet also sophisticated and timeless." andreawestdesign.com

▶ Keeping things "fresh and dainty," interior designer Cara Fox used this serene bathroom's charming Schumacher Chickadee wallpaper to color match custom cabinetry carved and crafted by Christopher Scott Cabinetry. thefoxgroup.com

◀ "It all started with the fabulous emerald green chairs," says designer Stephanie Lindsey. She used their bold color to create a connection to nature that set the stage for the St. George room's other elements, including natural wood art and a dot-patterned rug that nods to wildlife. Patterned host chairs further the room's outdoors-in theme while complementing the vibrant emerald green that inspired Lindsey's overall design. etchinteriordesign.com

▶ A sophisticated dialogue of stripes and greens defines celebrity Tan France's striking closet designed by Jessica Bennett. "We wanted something handsome and British," says Bennett, who papered the attic space in Cole & Son's Carousel Stripe to give the room a tented effect. "The green here feels sophisticated, handsome and historic. I can't imagine it any other color!" she exclaims. alicelaneinteriordesign.com

GO-TO GREENS

Top designers share the verdant paint colors they love now.

It mixes so well with Carrara and calacatta marbles. We love pairing marble and mint, and we often introduce brass lighting or hardware to warm it all up. This color also works well with Benjamin Moore's Swiss Coffee.

I'm loving saturated and vibrant jewel-tone greens. We used this to paint the cabinets in a butler's pantry that is sophisticated and timeless. Bold colors like this are best used in smaller, contained spaces such as pantries or powder baths where you can be more creative in your color choices. Saturated greens team well with warm, white-oak wood tones, black and whites, and gold metals.

Green has a place in any room. When you play with its tone and saturation, it can be deep and dramatic or quite calm. This particular green has a little less yellow, leaning more toward a blue green. It reminds me of nature and the reflection dance that happens when the sky and surrounding green trees reflect onto water.

EVER GREEN

FROM SASSY TO SUBLIME, THESE SPACES PULLED FROM OUR ARCHIVES PROVE THAT GREEN IS FOREVER IN STYLE.

1. In Park City, a pivoting chartreuse door brightens the entry of a modern mountain home in Park City. Design by Sparano + Mooney Architecture.
2. Designer Jason Wilde chose Benjamin Moore's "Sweet Daphne" to paint the ceiling of a Heber home's family room to "make the space feel more whimsical and cozy." A green honeycomb-patterned rug adds to the room's charm.
3. Trimmed in white, this lime-colored pavilion creates a chic outdoor living space behind a Federal Heights home in Salt Lake City. Design by Gregg Hodson.
4. In Orem, a verdigris chandelier lights a traditional dining room freshly dressed in layers of uplifting spring greens.
5. Pots to pillows, furniture to topiaries, varied shades of green enliven an elaborately trellised living area outside a Salt Lake home. Design by Michele Dunker.
6. In a Salt Lake City residence, a passageway painted Sherwin-Williams "Pickle" leads guests into a kitchen dressed in a citrusy green. Design by Susan Taggart and Warren Lloyd.
