On the lookout for some easy fall porch ideas? Of course you are, because now is the time of year when porch decor comes into its own. Sure you might add few spring flowers at Easter, and hang a wreath at Christmas, but fall is when you can really go to town.

We are stoked to don our cozy sweaters, sip hot apple cider and embrace pumpkin-spiced everything. But our favorite thing about this autumnal season is fall decorating ideas, for both inside and out with cozy, harvest touches. Your front porch is the ideal place to start as it's the first port of call for visitors.

HOW DO I DECORATE MY PORCH FOR FALL?

Essentially Fall porch decor is all about creating a warm, cozy, inviting space. We like to use warmer colors and layer up snug textures by adding chunky knitted blankets, wooly throws and tactile cushions. Tastefully display a pumpkin or two and you are on to a winner.

We asked home decor expert Stephanie Lindsey, of Etch Design Group how to decorate a porch for Fall. She says 'Fall is all about coziness, about welcoming people back to the home, and the best way to achieve a look that invites guests to gather is to keep it simple. Use natural elements like pumpkins and display them at varying heights. There are so many varieties, that it's easy to choose colors that pop against your doors and exterior hue.'
