Ray of sunshine

A beautiful bedroom is a combination of several considered elements that seamlessly marry with one another. Start with statement wallpaper and you can build the colour story across the room. 'The client gravitates towards more fun and funky patterns and colours, and wanted a space that was anything but cookie cutter - the wallpaper was an immediate winner and provided a wide assortment of hues to work with in the space,' says Stephanie Lindsey, interior designer, Etch Design Group. 'We pulled the yellow from the wallpaper into the room through the custom velvet headboard, and it just happened to match the client's existing antique chair.'

Small wonder

The devil is in the detail, as they say, so allow the smaller elements in a room to take centre stage and notice how they elevate the look of a simple space. Here a surprise design moment was created by transforming a shelving niche in the wall with wallpaper. 'In this room, the niche's colour palette is the common thread throughout and is picked up beautifully in the wall light and bedding,' says H el ene Pinaud, principal architect, Heju Studio. 'The entire scheme is awakened by a terracotta headboard feature, while the brass fittings give elegance to the room and will acquire a subtle patina over time.'
