From left: Sharing a love for cooking, the homeowners opted for a Bertazzoni electric range; custom cabinetry throughout the space is finished with hardware by Ferguson.

Rife with rich hues and sleek finishings, Austin-based Etch Design Group (etchinteriordesign.com) ensured that maximizing space was top of mind when approaching this home renovation. The homeowners also wanted to bring natural lighting further to the fold, focusing on both form and function. Etch Design Group enlisted Sherwin-Williams for the dark green color palette. The color—Forestwood—offered a calming undertone to the space while paired with a stained-wood island and natural shelving. The homeowners also sought to connect the home with the lush surroundings of the property. Raising the ceiling in the kitchen helped further open up the space, while the windows bathe the room in natural light, thus completing the connection to the outdoors. ■
